"IT'S THE BEAN"

TO HAVE AN INSTITUTE OF ECONOMICS

New York, April 20.—Plans for the establishment of an Institute of Economics to collect facts relating to economic questions and distribute them to the public in an understandable form were announced today by the Carnegie Corporation of New York.

The institute will be governed by a board of 15 trustees, and will be administered "without regard to the special interests of any group in the body politic, whether political, social or economic," according to the announcement.

The Carnegie Corporation has agreed to finance the undertaking for a period of 10 years at a total cost of $1,000,000, payable to the institute's trustees at the rate of $200,000 annually for the first five years, $150,000 a year for the next three years, and $100,000 each for the last two years. The corporation will have no control over these funds after they are paid to the institute.

The first board of trustees has been selected and will meet in Washington today for the purpose of effecting preliminary organization.

Those constituting the board include Arthur T. Hadley, president emeritus of Yale University; A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard; Dr. Charles D. Walcott, of Smithsonian Institution; Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia; David H. Miller, president of the University of Illinois; Paul Warburg, of New York; John Bates Payne, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board; American Red Cross; Robert S. Brookings, St. Louis; Charles L. Hutchison, Chicago; David F. Houston, New York; James J. Storrow, Boston; Bolton Smith, Memphis, Tennessee; Whitford R. Cole, Nashville, Tennessee; Samuel Mather, Cleveland and George Sutherland, Salt Lake City.

The trustees are to appoint a staff, and to proceed with the development of the institute.

The announcement said that the trustees of the Carnegie Corporation have come to the conclusion that the service of such an institution "would so far make available to the people of the United States those fundamental economic facts which are so closely connected with the industrial life of individual and nations."

With the completion of the last payment at the end of 10 years the corporation ceases that it assumes no further obligation to support or maintain the institute.

DICKSON LEAVENS SPEAKER

BEFORE NORWICH SOCIETY
At its annual dinner and meeting Wednesday evening at the Hotel Norwich, New York City, the Norwich Society of New York City elected the following officers for the year at the business meeting at which President Albert S. Rand presided.

President, Albert S. Rand; Vice President, Edward Harland Miller; Secretary, Robert L. Johnson; Treasurer, Charles A. Beach. Members of the executive committee—the foreign affairs and finance committee, Edward C. Ely, W. Clark Huntington, E. T. Kingsley, William Klein, Reginald Reynolds.

Dickson H. Leavens, Yale '93, and treasurer of the College of Yale in China, son of the late Francis J. Leavens of Norwich, was the guest of the evening and the principal speaker.

In introducing Mr. Leavens, Mr. Rand referred to the interest which the Norwich and Yale took in the Chinese students who were sent to this country in the early eighties by the Chinese government, to obtain an American education. He said that these present, he said, will recall these Chinese boys, and indeed, counted them among their boyhood friends. A few years later the Chinese students were all recalled to China by their government, but a few refused to return and continued their studies at Yale—a course which rendered a later return to China unsafe. In those days the students, quite naturally, were not allowed to talk to the Chinese who defied their government and remained to become permanent residents of America out of their own free will. This was in effect a renunciation of citizenship in China, which turned the oldest empire in the world into a republic—a government which is at least nominally republican in form—was an extraordinary event, the real significance of which remains to be seen. We are fortunate to have Mr. Leavens, who was not only a son of Norwich, but also a son of our old and distinguished Connecticut, Yale, and who interpreted to us some of the changes in China as he sees them.

Mr. Leavens spoke of conditions in China since the first revolution of 1911. The last ten years have been full of change and revolution. Large untrained armies have done a good deal of fighting and the powerful military officials have worked only for their selfish ends. At present the Chinese government controls the northern half of the country, the Canton government the southern part, and in between the Province of Hunan is independent. Financially the country is practically bankrupt, and on the surface it is hard to see any hope for the future.

On the other hand, there are many hopeful signs. A few able and patriotic leaders have arisen, and there is beginning to develop a strong public opinion, starting with the students, and spreading to other classes. These combine a natural resource, the intellectual ability of the race and the history of the people, fully inclined masses, make one optimistic that she will muddle through the present transition period in some way, and eventually become a strong nation.

Yale in China is a college founded by Yale men to reproduce in China something of the same spirit as is found in New Haven. China must have leaders of first rate education, and at the same time men of character and ideals. If she is not to become merely an "efficient" power and a second Germany. It is the aim of Yale in China, which is planned to develop eventually in a Chinese staffed and supported institution, to train such leaders, and this should eventually not only help China, but also react favorably on China's relations with America.

After the speaking the members were the guests of the Harvard Club in Harvard hall, at which a series of moving pictures were shown of shooting and fishing. The subjects included the decoying of Canadian geese, trout fishing, sword fishing, at Catalina Island, a turkey hunt in Maryland, moose hunting in New Brunswick, and duck hunting at Curlew Neck, Virginia.

Those present were J. H. Abertson, Louis M. Aloff, M. D., Anthony B. Arnold, Albert S. Rand, Charles A. Beach, Hon. Francis P. Best, Rufus B. Burnham, Louis J. Chamanski, Arthur Goote, Edward J. Crawford, Louis R. Deane, William T. Duncan, Edward C. Ely, W. S. Gayford, W. Clark Huntington, Geo. H. Hyde, Robert L. Johnson, Henry W. Kellogg, William B. Kinn, Gilbert D. Leno, Dickson H. Leavens, Fred Lewis, Hugh F. McLaughlin, Wm. F. McNamara, Arthur P. McWilliams, Edward H. Miller, E. L. Messenger, Charles R. Nichols, P. O'Brien, M. C. Parker, Frank L. Pater, Edwin A. Reeves, Reginald Reynolds, J. T. Riordan, Richard Schellens, James A. Somers.

JOFFRE WERE GUESTS

OF HONOR OF THE D. A. R.

Washington, April 20.—Ceremonies at the tomb of Washington, with Marshal and Madame Joffre and their daughter, the guests of honor, were held today by the Daughters of the American Revolution, who are holding their annual congress here. Marshal Joffre assisted Ambassador Jusserand of France in planting in the grounds of Mount Vernon a tree from La Grange Castle, the home in France of Lafayette, and he also placed a wreath on the tomb.

Another wreath was placed on behalf of the British Embassy, and Mrs. George Maynard Minor, president-general, placed wreaths on the tomb of Washington and his wife on behalf of the organization. A tree from Suhrgrave Manor, the ancestral home of the Washingtons in England, also was planted in the grounds by Major General Bethell of the British Embassy as a gift from Great Britain.

Marshal and Madame Joffre of France were the guests of the president and Mrs. Harding at dinner at the White House tonight. A number of other distinguished guests were also present.

GOVERNOR OF MANCHURIA TO ASSUME CHARGE OF TROOPS

Peking, April 20 (By the A. P.).—General Chang Tsoo-Lin, governor of Manchuria, is prepared to move to Tientsin from Mukden to assume charge of his troops, which are facing the government forces a short distance from Peking. He is said to be willing to negotiate with General Wu Pei-Fu commander of the central Chinese forces, for an amicable adjustment of the controversy.

Reports received from the south indicate that Wu Pei-Fu disapproves of the plan to hold a convention with the purpose of settling the political differences between the military commanders. The railroad from Peking to Pukow is interrupted. The train bound for Shanghai, loaded with Americans, remained at Peking today. It is supposed that Wu Pei-Fu is blocking the movement of Chang Tsoo-Lin's troops.

WOULD HAVE CANDIDATES PLEDGED FOR PROHIBITION

Meriden, April 20.—At the anniversary of the New York East Conference Temperance society, held here this evening in connection with the 14 session of the conference, the Rev. T. W. Bartholomew, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., the president of the society delivered an address on temperance and the enforcement of the prohibition laws.

He told his hearers there were no less than thirty-one separate organizations, which have combined forces to knock out the Volstead act, and that they are making a special drive for congressmen in the election to be held this fall. He urged the members of the conference to go back to their homes prepared to combat this influence, and try to influence their people to require all candidates, republican or democratic, to set forth their standing on this subject before voting for them.

FAITH

Pushed a seed by faith alone
Through the dark to the unknown,
Came at last through winter's gloom
On a mountain top to bloom.

Shook the dirt from off its neck,
Groomed itself without a fleck.
Raised its head and at the sky
Cocked a blue untroubled eye.

Quoth the mountain, "It is well
Deeper down it did not dwell;
Faith like that another place
Might have moved me from my base."

Y., with a family in that place, and also a wife in this city, was sentenced to one year in the house of correction today on a charge of bigamy. He was found guilty a week ago. He was married to Miss Demaris last November.

RESTORING OLD BOOKS

Books are liable to many ailments, but curing them is a delicate and expensive process. The skill of the book surgeon has been responsible for the preservation of many literary treasures which would otherwise have succumbed to their injuries or to the ravages of senile decay, says a correspondent in the London Daily Mail.

The sixteenth century tome which has lain for years in a cellar, with torn pages, stained by damp and crumbling with mildew, will return from the "hospital" without a trace of its former decrepitude, good for another 100 years of life. The cleaning treatment consists in immersing the stained sheets in a bath of permanganate of potash. This removes all stains, but turns the whole sheet brown, and it is followed by a bath of very weak sulphuric acid to restore its whiteness. The leaves are then treated with size, which revitalizes them, and finally toned down to match the color of the rest of the pages.

Beside, damp stains, some books—especially those printed during the sixteenth century, when there seems to have been something amiss with the composition of the paper—become pitted with masses of small brown spots known as "foxing." These unless removed speedily and passed on to the discoloration of the pages. Mildew is the most deadly of book diseases, and, unless checked, it will eat its way from cover to cover and quickly cause the leaves to crumble away. If the pages of a book are torn, the edges frayed, or if mildew holes have appeared, a delicate operation must be performed and the missing or diseased parts replaced by grafting on new paper. In such a case the first care of the surgeon is to see that the new paper exactly matches the old, not only in texture and grain but also in its watermark. For this purpose, he keeps, filed under date, a collection of old paper, which he has gradually accumulated, often by taking the fly leaves from old books which in themselves are of no value.

Suppose the corner of a leaf is missing. The book surgeon cuts his paper to a size slightly larger than is required to replace the missing portion so that it will just overlap the frayed edge. Having pasted this in position he scratches away with a sharp knife the overlapping strip on each side and leaves the edges until the two papers are grafted together with no sign of a joint. If the letterpress or a design has been injured, this is then inserted by pen and ink from a perfect copy of the book, care being taken that the color of the ink exactly matches that of the original. The binding next receives attention. Corners are built up, new leather is grafted on, lettering or design renewed and perhaps a new back is supplied.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

External treatments seldom cure Piles. Nor do surgical operations. The cause is inside—the circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

Dr. Leonard M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

CRIMINALS ARE MEETING SWIFT JUSTICE IN NEW YORK

New York, April 20.—Inhabited with the spirit of speed which District Attorney Stanton and the various judges have been seeking to instill into criminal trials, juries began breaking records today. A jury before Judge Crane in general sessions returned a first degree robbery verdict against Peter O'Donnell of Longbranch, N. Y., in just four minutes. O'Donnell, with John Taylor, had up and robbed a ticket agent of the Cline street ship line of $244 last September. Taylor pleaded guilty.

The four-minute record stood only a short time, however, as a jury before Judge Thompson hurriedly in with a verdict of first degree robbery against Joseph Prindelli, a seaman in a few seconds over one minute. He and another seaman bent and robbed William Shattuck of $22 on Feb. 15.

Arrests were not so numerous today, but one new trial of robbery known as the "madman trial" appeared in the list. Samuel Stein, 32, was held in $5,000 bail on complaint of Esther Horn, who charged he stole a $100 diamond ring while holding picture theatre. When he directed his attention to a pocket in her skirt, she said, removing a pocketbook containing $240, after which he slipped away while she was watching the picture and before she realized he was gone.

Ivyton.—Frank M. Houghton, of Sturges, New Brunswick, and Mrs. Effie Houghton, of Chateaufort, were married Saturday. Rev. Mr. Hale officiated at the Catholic Church of the Immaculate Conception.
